The iconic Sundance Rehearsal Hall was built for the Sundance Institute Labs as a space for young dancers and filmmakers to hone their crafts. Rehearsal Hall boasts a sprung floor, 17-foot ceilings, and sliding barn-style glass doors that open to the woods and streams that surround it. Rehearsal Hall's outdoor deck overlooks the Sundance pond and Allan Houser's masterful bronze sculpture, "Prayer Song." Rehearsal Hall accommodates up to 250 people for a sit-down meal and subdivides into three sections for added flexibility.
